

5.) How to review, accept or reject Findmy-past hints

We give you the option to review, accept or reject the record matches suggested by hints. If the hints provide a record that could match your relative, review its details. From there, you can decide if the record is or isn't your about your family member. If it's not, you can reject the record.

If the record looks like a good match for the person on your tree, you can add its information to that relative's profile using the merging tool.

How to build your family tree with Find My Past

We want to help you build your family tree and make it as easy as possible. Our free online family tree builder has lots of handy features to do just that.

1.) Start a family tree on Findmypast

Go to our family tree page and follow the simple on-screen steps to get started.

2.) Grow your family tree

Your family tree will constantly grow and change as you make new discoveries. Thankfully, adding people to your tree is an easy process.

Add anyone to your family tree by selecting the '+ Add a relative' icon. Then, simply add their details, however much or little you know.

3.) More handy family tree features:

Our intuitive family tree builder is easy to navigate. The zoom tools allow you to view more of your ancestors all at once or get closer to the branches you're focusing on.

3.) More handy family tree features (continued)

You can view and edit your relative's details in the sidebar that opens when you select them on your family tree.

And The 'Focus Person' tool highlights the relative you're currently viewing.

4.) Hints do the hard work for you

Findmypast's clever record hints are, by far, the quickest and easiest way to build your family tree. They prompt you to look at potential matches in our records for people on your family tree.

The more people you add to your tree, the more hints you'll get. It's like having your own family detective always at work in the background. Be sure to regularly review your hints.

Where can I view hints on my family tree?

When you add a new family member or more details to your tree, a little orange bubble with a number in it might pop up beside them. The number tells you the number of records we've found that could be about that relative.
